

HELICOPTER FOCUS: CANON

Canon’s imaging innovation meets community spirit at Stockley Park.

Since establishing its Europe Middle East & Africa (EMEA) strategic head office, as well as its UK & Ireland National Sales & Marketing head office at Stockley Park, Canon has embraced the opportunity to champion sustainability, innovation and community engagement in equal measure.

As a global imaging solutions provider, Canon’s philosophy of Kyosei—living and working together for the common good – resonates with the values of Stockley Park. This commitment is reflected not only in the way Canon operates, but also in how it contributes to the wider business community.

A sustainable workplace for the future

Canon’s office at Stockley Park is a showcase of environmentally conscious design and operation. The building incorporates:

- Smart energy systems that reduce consumption through intelligent lighting, heating and cooling
- Sustainable materials used throughout the workspace to lower environmental impact
- Comprehensive recycling and waste management programs that support circularity
- Green outdoor spaces that promote biodiversity and employee wellbeing

These features are part of Canon’s broader sustainability strategy, which includes ambitious targets for reducing carbon emissions, promoting circular economy practices, and supporting responsible innovation.

Active support for the Stockley Park community

Canon is proud to be an active participant in the Stockley Park community.

Canon regularly supports events organised by Stockley Park Estates Company Limited (SPECL), with many of its employees actively participating in a variety of activities, including the walking club, workshops, and film festivals. Canon believes in the power of collaboration to foster a thriving, inclusive environment.

Through SPECL, Canon was introduced to two remarkable local charities—Hillingdon Hospitals Charity in 2019 and Green Corridor College in 2024. Since then, Canon teams have generously volunteered their time to support these organisations, taking part in hands-on activities such as painting sheds, gardening, and preparing outdoor spaces for new gardens to be created and enjoyed by the community.

Showcasing innovation at community events

Canon also takes pride in engaging directly with fellow businesses at Stockley Park through events like the annual Summer Fair. At these gatherings, Canon sets up interactive stalls where employees and visitors can explore the latest products in imaging technology. These hands-on demonstrations not only showcase Canon’s product innovation but also foster meaningful connections with neighbouring offices. By offering practical insights and personalised experiences, Canon helps local businesses discover how imaging solutions can enhance their day-to-day operations.

Looking ahead

Canon continues to invest in its people, its technology and its community. As part of the Stockley Park ecosystem, Canon is committed to helping shape a greener, more connected future – where innovation and sustainability go hand in hand.
